Ryan Currier - Impacts from Outer Space

Thursday, September 22, 2016

Extraterrestrial impacts formed our planet and our moon, and are linked to great extinctions of life. This program investigates where these impactors come from, what they are, and what happens during impacts and the aftermath, with attention given to historical cases.

Jessica Michna - Goode Rebeka, "The Salem Witch Trials"

Tuesday, October 25, 2016

It was a new world. The settlers from England had gained a foothold in the verdant land called "Amerika". Old traditions would be laid aside, new ones instituted. Greed, jealousy, suspicion would still persist. Were these at the root of "The Salem Witch Trials"? Innocent residents of Salem, Massachusetts were tried and many executed in perhaps the most infamous chapter in early American history.

Ann Koski - Decorating your Victorian Home for the Holidays

Thursday, November 10, 2016

Red velvet bows; greenery everywhere; trees sparkling with candles and lots of ornaments. These are the types of things we typically think of when hearing the phrase: "Victorian Christmas Decorations". But, is this what it was really like? For most people in the Midwest, it was not. Christmas decorations crept slowly into the lives of Victorians. Using historical photographs and documentation, this program will explore the advent of Christmas decorations beginning in the 1830s and carrying over into the present. Along the way, some of the Christmas customs that accompanied the holiday and its decorations will be featured.

Rochelle Pennington - World War I Christmas Miracle

Thursday, December 8, 2016

Pennington's program draws directly from writings and photos left by soldiers who participated in the events of Christmas 1914 after celebrating the holiday with their enemies. It's estimated that 100,000 soldiers experienced the unofficial Christmas Truce, which spanned hundreds of miles along the trenches.

Erika Janik - Pistols and Petticoats: 175 years of Lady Detectives in Fact and Fiction

Thursday, February 23, 2017

In 1910, Alice Wells took the oath to join the all-male Los Angeles Police Department. She wore no uniform, carried no weapon, and kept her badge stuffed in her pocketbook. She wasn't the first or only policewoman, but she became the movement's most visible voice. Police work from its very beginning was considered a male domain, far too dangerous and rough for a respectable woman to even contemplate doing, much less take on as a profession. Yet within the covers of popular fiction, women not only wrote mysteries but also created female characters that handily solved crimes. Erika Janik will share the story of the women who blazed the trail in law enforcement in real life and in books.

Julianne Stanz - The Life of St. Patrick

Thursday, March 16, 2017

St. Patrick of Ireland- the man, the myth, the legend. St. Patrick, patron saint of Ireland is one of Ireland's best known saints and his life is intermingled with fact and folklore. Come and be immersed in the real St. Patrick through his footsteps around Ireland and his writings which detail a passionate man who lived a full life infused with laughter and love.

Bob Kann - Joyce Westerman and the All American Girls Professional Baseball League

Thursday, April 27, 2017

Joyce Westerman made a BIG difference. Joyce helped change the perception that sports are too tough for women. Joyce was one of more than 550 women who played in the All American Girls Professional Baseball League from 1943-1954. Thirty six years after she quit playing professional baseball, Joyce and the other women from "The League" were chosen to become members of the Baseball Hall of Fame. Learn about Joyce's experiences in the league, struggles as a child during the Depression, and the challenges working at American Motors when women were not welcome in the work force. Joyce's "can do" attitude in sports and life serve as an inspiration to us all.

Jerry Apps - Wisconsin Agriculture: A History

Thursday, May 18, 2017

Wisconsin has been a farming state from its very beginnings. And though it didn't begin as a dairy state, by 1900 dairying became its major agricultural industry. The state also continued to produce a diversity of other agricultural products. In fact, Wisconsin is one of the most diverse agricultural states in the nation. The story of farming and dairying in Wisconsin is rich, and the threads of that story are related and intertwined. Jerry Apps examines everything from fundamental influences of landscape and weather to complex matters of ethnic and pioneer settlement patterns, changing technology, agricultural research and education.
