

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

Natural History Lecture Series: Native Bees of Wisconsin* at Neville Public Museum

Green Bay, WI—July 1, 2008—Join UW-Green Bay Assistant Professor Amy Wolf as she presents Natural History Lecture Series: Native Bees of Wisconsin on Wednesday, July 9 at the Neville Public Museum. The presentation will begin at 7 pm and is free.

Amy's presentation will discuss Wisconsin's native bee populations including solitary bees, leafcutter bees, sweat bees, bumblebees, and other native bees you can find in your backyard. Also learn how bees can benefit our landscape.

This program is co-sponsored by the Wild Ones, NEW Audubon, and the Baird Creek Preservation Foundation.

Matt Welter is the Curator of Education at the Neville Public Museum and can be contacted at 920-448-7851 or welter_mt@co.brown.wi.us for more information on this program.
