

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

Green Bay, WI—August 6, 2008—Join the Neville Public Museum's Curator of Education, Matt Welter, as he presents Natural History Lecture Series: Portland's Unique Natural Areas on Wednesday, August 13 at the Neville Public Museum. The presentation will begin at 7 pm and is free.

Join Matt Welter as he speaks about natural areas surrounding this green city in the Pacific Northwest. See a slideshow of waterfalls, beach finds, giant trees, and of course, banana slugs. Some videos included. Learn about some of the ways Portland has green spaces imbedded in its community.

This program is co-sponsored by the Wild Ones, NEW Audubon, and the Baird Creek Preservation Foundation.

Matt Welter is the Curator of Education at the Neville Public Museum and can be contacted at 920-448-7851 or welter_mt@co.brown.wi.us for more information on this program.
