

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

Steaming Through the American Century: Maritime Photography by Chris Winters* on display at the Neville

Green Bay, WI---June 1, 2015--- When Milwaukee photographer and self-confessed “boat nerd” Christopher Winters ran across a Great Lakes steamboat nearing her 100th birthday, he approached the boat’s owner about documenting the remarkable longevity of the steamship St. Mary’s Challenger. It took him four years – and the latest in digital photography – to snap a half-million frames of the Challenger in action. This exhibit features spellbinding images of the historic ship and the daily routines of its dedicated crew.

Steaming Through the American Century will be on display at the Neville Public Museum from June 3, 2015 through September 13, 2015.
